Organizers call Summer Games a success despite inclement weather

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Over 1050 participants and nearly 2000 spectators took part in the Big Country Summer Games held in Didsbury over the weekend, an event which organizers said went off without a hitch despite uncooperative weather.

Games manager Laura Silbernagel said only one event had to be postponed until after the weekend because of rain.

"The lawn bowling had to be delayed but that was the only event," Silbernagel said. "Everything else went off on schedule."

Silbernagel said organizers were also pleased with the turnout of participants for the events.

"We had an excellent turnout for everything except baseball sports," she said. "But that was just because of timing. There were a number of other money tournaments also being played around the province this weekend."

Organizers and spectators were also pleased with the turnout for both the opening and closing ceremonies during the event. The opening ceremony, held in the sand at the arena, attracted over 400 spectators and a crowd of participating athletes. Formal through the speeches from MP Myron Thompson, Mayor Ray Lea, MLA Roy Brassard and guest speaker Olympic swimmer Tom Ponting, the ice was quickly broken by the grad four class from Ross Ford Elementary. Dressed as bees and dancing with Didsbury's new mascot Didsbee, the class got the crowd grooving after breaking into an upbeat disco dance which had Didsbee showing off some hip moves.

As for cultural events, the turnout was not as large as expected for the three act play by Ready, set go. Little Mitch McCarger age 3 and his mother Kelly took up the torch along with 22 other runners during the torch relay run held on Friday night to kick off the Big Country Summer Games. The runners brought the torch up from the campground, around town and finally into the opening ceremonies where a large torch was lit and the games were officially declared open. Theatre Didsbury on Friday night, but the multi-purpose room was filled for the wide range of talented acts which was held during Variety Night on Saturday. Many people were also shown through the museum, art show and craft show around town although the outdoor entertainment was delayed on Saturday and moved inside on Sunday because of rain.

The Lions' pancake breakfast was a huge success on Saturday morning, running from 7am to 11am thanks largely to over 300 swim meet participants who were housed beside the breakfast in the multi-purpose room. The Aquajets breakfast on Sunday was also successful but didn't have as large a turnout.

As for the financial success of the games, Silbernagel said the organizing committee will be meeting later in the week to go over the books. Physically though, the community legacy has already been left over $1000 in upgrades to the local ball diamonds, over $4000 of equipment has been left with local sporting teams and a new outdoor volleyball net has been left

New funding concerns high school parents

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A new policy which will see students funded equally from grades one through 12 is raising concern with high school parents.

In a letter circulated to parents by Olds High School parents advisory committee chair Maureen Gustafson, concern was expressed over programs and teacher loss as a result of the equalized level of funding.

"At first glance this (equalized funding) may appear to be the most fair method of budgeting. However, it does not take into account the extra costs of educating a student at the secondary level," Gustafson said in her letter.

Linda Buschert, Chair of the Didsbury High School Parents' Advisory Committee shares these concerns. She said the new equalized funding program means high schools will have fewer dollars to offer the wide variety of programs DHS now offers.

RCMP request witnesses

Special to the Review

Olds RCMP are requesting the public's help in solving two break, enters and thefts.

The first break and enter occurred sometime between December 9, 1994 and April 10, 1995 in a quonset approximately six miles west of Olds. The suspect or suspects entered the quonset by prying the door open and removed a .22 calibre rifle with scope and a slip-on rubber butt pad, a Sears power washer 900, four rolls of barbed wire, wire stretchers and several tools valued at $2,100.

The second break and enter occurred at a residence approximately three miles east of Bowden on June 20th, 1994. A male and female driving a cream colored Toyota Turcel with rust spots on both sides of the vehicle are believed to be responsible. The female is described as having shoulder length sandy blond hair, with a ball cap on backwards. The male had dark brown hair, a moustache and a "beannie cap". Stolen was a Fujikama computer and printer, an Emerson 20 color T.V., Emerson V.C.R. and a disc player. Several pieces of antique jewelry were also stolen. Approximate value of all items stolen is near $4,200.

Anyone having any information on either of these break ins are asked to contact the Olds RCMP or CrimeStoppers at (403) 340-8477.

Schuh released from custody

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

An Olds area man has been released from custody after a provincial court judge ordered him to stay away from Olds and away from children under the age of 18.

Arnold Kim Schuh was released from custody after making his first appearance in court last week on nine sex related charges involving girls between the ages of 4 and 12.

Schuh, age 37, was ordered to live outside Olds and not to have any contact with children, besides his own. He has been charged with five counts of sexual interference, two counts of sexual assault and two counts of corrupting the morals of a minor, related to incidents alleged to have occurred over the past two years.

Schuh, who denies the charges, reserved his plea until July 19.

"Just looking at the budget for next year, it looks like we are going to lose a teacher and a half at the high school level," Buschert said. "That is where it is going to start to hurt."

Buschert said the switch to equalized funding also means equipment in chemistry, physics, shop and home economics will suffer and high school will be hard pressed to offer decent after school athletics programs because over worked teachers will not be as interested in volunteering their after hours time.

"I think what this means is that the cost to the parent will just rise," Buschert said. "Not just through taxes but also through book rentals and school fees."

But the school board's senior administrative staff still feels the move to equalized funding is correct despite opposition from parents.

Senior administrator Wayne Poncia said the funding levels out for different costs at elementary and secondary levels.

"In elementary schools they have to pay for specialized care like psychiatric testing and there are other more significant educational needs at that level," Poncia said. "The elementary years are the formative years. Therefore we should be expending the funds where they get the most impact."

But Buschert said the school board has forgotten high school students also need counsellors and that the cost of text books are far higher at secondary levels.

"And I don't know where they get the idea that one text book will last six to eight years," Buschert said. "Just looking over my own children's books as they went through the grades, I saw the editions change every year. This is just one of the concerns we have to deal with when we have a superintendent who has never been a teacher in the classroom."

Buschert said the DHS PAC is planning to rally parent support of their drive to turn away from equalized funding. They plan to join up with Olds and Sundre parents this October to make funding an issue during the October elections.

The youth, who cannot be named under the Young Offenders Act pleaded guilty to break and enter and theft from a garage on April 29 and break and enter and theft from a Mohawk gas station on May 12. Both incidents occurred in Olds. The youth also pleaded guilty to a break, enter and theft at Stan's Barber Shop in Didsbury on April 30 in which several hundred dollars worth of hockey cards were stolen.

The youth pleaded not guilty to possession of stolen property.

The youth's lawyer asked that sentencing take place after the trial on the possession charge. He was granted a trial date in September to allow the youth to attend a drug rehabilitation program in Saskatchewan.

A Sundre man walked away with a $200 fine after pleading guilty to possession of a narcotic in provincial court last week.

Ernie Kaserukoff had been charged with possession in August, 1993 and was later charged with two counts of failure to appear after he failed to show up for fingerprinting and in court to answer the possession case. The failure to appear charges were later dropped after Kaserukoff explained that he had to return to Manitoba because his father had died.

Beefs and bouquets

Janice Harrington

First, the bouquet.

I have to offer a tip of the hat to the organizing committee of the Big Country Summer Games for a fun filled and frantic weekend. Games Manager Laura Silbernagel also deserves a very large round of applause for managing to pull it all together despite some draw backs along the way. The entire event was a blast despite the rotten weather and they need to be congratulated.

I have to admit, my favorite part of the event was the Didsbee Dance during the opening ceremonies. In all honesty, I thought we were going to be embarrassed when this huge group of grade four students dressed as pseudo bees started dancing demurely and rather sedately to some elevator type music, but when they broke into the heavy disco beat and starting grooving all over the floor with the Didsbee (and a very hip Didsbee, I might add), it really broke the ice and gave the crowd the element of fun it needed. Not that the ceremonies before the dance were boring but they were rather formal.

Downtown Didsbury on Saturday afternoon was also a load of fun, that is after the rain let up. People started milling about and enjoying the entertainment and shows. I personally really enjoyed the author readings at the library and hope we can find a way to continue that tradition on a more regular basis.

Thanks again BCSG committee for filling my weekend. Now for the beef.

I just have one question for whomever is responsible for the large truck trailer parked in front of the campground which holds all the local business signs - what were you thinking?

I know it is a good idea to entice drivers further into the downtown by showing them what is available, but couldn't a better location be found. I think it should go back against the hill on the south side of 582 where it was originally. In its current location in the valley on the north side of the road, it looks fine heading into town but heading out, it is a real eye sore. I think some decorative ergonomic support is needed here. Please.

Quote of the week

"People say, oh good your job is over now (that the Summer Gems are done). But no it isn't. I still have a bunch of reports to do and results to be compiled. But it still is a lot of fun." A very tired Big Country Summer Games manger Laura Silbernagel Monday after the big event.

The public opinion

by Dr. William
McCormick, President
Canadian Psychiatric Association

A recent Canadian Psychiatric Association (CPA) survey shows that Canadians see stigma, followed by lack of recognition of symptoms, as the main barriers to seeking help or information on mental illness.

Mental illnesses have always been with us, but the stigma has been with us for too long. For people who suffer from mental illnesses, the stigma is often as debilitating as the illness itself.

In Canada, one individual out of five will suffer from a mental illness at some time in his or her life. 250,000 Canadians over the age of 65 suffer from Alzheimer Disease. 200,000 Canadians suffer from schizophrenia and another 300,000 Canadians suffer from manic-depression. This prevalence is significant, accounting therealone for almost two percent of the population.

Education is clearly the best tool to help reduce the stigma attached to mental illness and allow people to freely seek information and help. Several decades ago, people suffering from cancer were shunned by much of society, actually feared. Today, after years of research and public education, most people understand that cancers are illnesses that are challenging to patients and their physicians, not cause for discrimination.

With the public's perception of mental illnesses today much like its perception of cancer in the past, the Canadian Psychiatric Association, the Schizophrenia Society of Canada and the provincial associations for depression and manic-depression of Canada are promoting the destigmatization of mental illnesses through their annual national awareness campaign, Mental Illness Awareness Week.

This campaign aims to remove the barriers that prevent too many Canadians from seeking and receiving care for a mental illness. We must overcome the stigma and allow ourselves to put our stereotypes away and look at people, not myths and pre-conceptions.

It is impossible to eradicate all mental illnesses, but through Mental Illness Awareness Week, we are joining efforts in the hope that future generations do not grow up with the stigma that prevents so many of us from seeking information or help.

Church group stands against gambling

Dear Editor:

Bergthal Mennonite Church sponsored a meeting with M.L.A. Roy Brassard at Midway School on Thursday, June 1 about the possible increase in lottery outlets in our province.

The position of this group is that gambling undermines moral and spiritual values which make for healthy personal lives and a healthy community spirit. A solid work ethic is the basis for personal satisfaction in that it gives an individual a sense of self worth. A worker provides the necessities of life for himself and his family and also has the means to assist in community efforts and to help less fortunate folk. The Bible, in Ephesians 4:28 states "Work with your hands that you may have the means to help those in need." Gambling on the other hand, perpetrates the idea of getting something for nothing and the "get rich quick" nation. It undermines the value of individual effort and responsibility for earning a living and often leads to selfishness, greed, addiction and crime. It is an inefficient method of "taxing" the populace in that much of the money is spent on administration and prizes. Much of the gambling revenue is drawn from the poorer sector of society where it affects housing, food and clothing for the family.

Our community, through its clubs, organizations and churches and through the giving of its residents, has built according to the needs of this community. This includes facilities for low-income families.

Although more recently some funding for community projects has come from lottery revenues, it is felt that this takes away from the feeling of responsibility and ownership that is a necessary basic value for a thriving community.

Mr. Brassard gave the group an overview of his findings and concerns and of his involvement with the issue of government control over the lotteries as he works with the Alberta Lottery Review Committee. He provided sometimes startling information about the acceleration of gambling in our province. It was reassuring to note that at present, lotteries are permitted only for charitable purposes, but should they be established on reserves this would change.

VLT social cost too high

Dear Editor:

When calls to the problem gambling helpline triple and 60 percent of those calls are related to video lottery terminals (a polite way of saying video slot machines), the government should see that as a wakeup call to take action. Instead, Klein and West see the devastation of more and more lives as an acceptable and expected consequence of balancing the budget.

Our Alberta is witnessing a dramatic shift away from a government that looks out for its citizens to one that preys on them. While I admit that gambling addictions will likely always exist, the dramatic increase of addictions related to government operated slot machines is an unacceptable social cost.

Like all the Klein government cuts, the proliferation of VLTs shows a profound lack of compassion and promotes the deterioration of our communities. My advice to the Klein government is simple: admit you are addicted to VLT revenue, pull the plug and start on the road to recovery.

Yours truly,
Grant Mitchell

Help needed for heritage

Dear Editor:

There are almost certainly, among your readers, people related to the Highland Scots who pioneered more than two centuries ago in what is now Glengarry County, Ontario. Descendants of these hardy settlers spread out across the continent and there are few towns or cities in Canada today without a "Glengarry connection."

Thus these people, and indeed all Canadians concerned with history and the preservation of historic structures, will be interested in the fate of the great stone church at St. Raphael's, Ontario.

From the time of its construction 175 years ago, the great church stood as a landmark on the rolling hills of Glengarry County. Its vast walls witnessed generations of praise and thanksgiving, of christenings and weddings and funerals. Then on the night of August 10, 1970, fire struck the venerable building. In the morning only the monumental stone walls remained.

This was a church built in the earliest days of Ontario's history. The Highlanders who settled Glengarry - the sons and grandsons of Bonnie Prince Charlie's men - while yet carving a new life from the Canadian wilderness, volunteered their time to build St. Raphael's Catholic Church. It was one of the noblest structures of pioneer Canada, a great neo-classical monument that sat a thousand people and proclaimed unshakeable faith in the future of Canada.

But with a parish in 1970 of just 150 families, there was no chance of rebuilding the great burnt church. Instead, a small chapel was built nearby and the towering ruins rededicated as an historic site. The stone walls were stabilized by the Ontario Heritage Foundation, the interior landscaped. The walls became the site of concerts and celebrations, a place of pride for the area residents and a point of interest for visitors to eastern Ontario.

But now, a quarter-century later, the Ruins of St. Raphael's need work. Damage from summer rains and winter frost must be undone to ensure that the walls remain safe for the admiration and inspiration of future generations.

The Friends of the Ruins of St. Raphael's is a non-profit, non-denominational citizens' group that has assumed ownership of the Ruins. Its sole aim is to ensure that a monument of such historic, social and architectural significance as the Ruins of St. Raphael's - a monument unique in North America - should not pass from the scene.

So, come on, you sons and daughters of the Canadian Glengarry and everyone interested in Canadian history. Help save the Ruins of St. Raphael's! To receive our information pamphlet, send a stamped self-addressed business envelope to the Friends of the Ruins of St. Raphael's Inc., Box 190, Williamstown, Ontario K0C 2J0. Tax-deductible contributions will be gratefully accepted and acknowledged.

With many thanks, I am

Yours sincerely,

Transfeeder destroyed by fire

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Olds RCMP are calling a fire which destroyed Olds business as suspicious.

Olds RCMP Sergeant Dave Lee said arson investigators are looking into the fire which destroyed Transfeeder Inc., a hay exporting businesses associated with Olds College.

Sergeant Lee said the RCMP and fire department were called to a fire at the business approximately 2:30 Friday morning. The fire is suspected to have begun on hay drying field located east of the Transfeeder buildings.

The fire destroyed all three buildings on the property along with equipment. Damage is estimated at more than $2 million.

In a press release issued last week, Transfeeder manager Barry Schmitt said the losses will be recouped through insurance, including 100,000 bales of hay lost in the fire.

Transfeeder's agreement with the college allows students to learn research, development and production at the plant. The plant employs approximately 40 workers.

While the fire completely shut down operations at the Olds College site, Schmitt said alternate production arrangements have been made with the Alberta Timothy Hay Company, a division of Transfeeder, which recently opened near Cremona.

"We've diverted all the orders for compressed hay that were to be filled here directly to our Cremona plant," said Schmitt. "It only took us four hours to put a plan into place once we received word about the fire."

as well as equestrian jumps.

Silbernagel said the best part of the games was watching the community come together to pull off the event.

"In the end we had over 250 volunteers," she said. "It is really nice that the community pulled together when we really needed them."

W.I. celebrates an 80 year gala event

by Jeanette Hunter
Special to the Review

It was a wonderful afternoon May 28, 1995 when Mountain View Women's Institute celebrated their 80th Anniversary with friends and former members held at Mt. View Hall with the W.I. opening ceremonies and the one minute silence for our departed members.

Mrs. Fern Olson, President gave the welcome address.

Mrs. Elsie Phillips introduced our invited guests Mrs. Doris Northey, President Elect of Alberta Womens Institute of Red Deer, Mrs. Gerri Shadlock, district 5 director from Rosedale and Shirley Thompson, East Didsbury Constituency convener of Didsbury.

Mrs. Gerri Shadlock brought greetings to our branch and said how pleased she was to be with us.

Mrs. Jeanette Hunter gave the Roll Call of our present members with total of 310 years for Home and Country from ten paid up members for 1995.

We were sad to lose one of our members recently, Mrs. Phyllis Leeder, and another was ill on the day of the anniversary.

Descendents of the 1915 members in the area and present were: 1915 - Mrs. Tom Hunter (Emily) - daughter Mrs. Jean Swanson and husband Harold, son Lawrence Hunter and wife Jeanette; 1915 - Miss Lennie Stewart later Mrs. Henry Hooper - daughter Eveline

Rip roaring win. Didsbury's Gary Dolha got a bit of a shock last week when he was informed he had won the Alberta Ride for Sight's raffle for a $22,000 Harley Davidson motorcycle. Dolha, who said he hasn't been on a bike for years, plans to keep the machine for a year and then may sell it. The raffle helped the Ride for Sight raise $235,000 for Retinitis Pigmentosa research. Some of the money raised also went to help local RP sufferer Jordan King (on the bike). Jordan, age 8, received a Yamaha keyboard to help encourage his remarkable musical talent. Elaine Wilson photo

Quantz, son Stewart Hooper and wife Myrtle also their Aunt; 1915 - Mrs. Ray Johnson (Alice) their mother's sister; 1915 - Mrs. Peter Johnston (May) - granddaughter Mrs. Thelma Olhausen and husband Eddie.

Members joined as far North as half way to Olds, Didsbury and ten miles east of Mountain View Hall.

One couple joined in 1918, Lorne & Benj. Sherk, the one and only man.

We were so pleased to have two girls club members present, Doreen Pawlowski (Pratt) and Carol Shantz (Pratt) who were members of the Mountain View Jolly Juniors in the years of 1955-1970.

Mrs. Millie McNeil mentioned that our "Theme Song" was composed by former members Mrs. Louise Atkinson in 1938 and was sung by present and former members.

Gwen Pratt gave the history of the Institute dating a way back. It was with the urging of the W.I. that Mt. View Hall was built. This year on June 18, will mark the 75th anniversary of the hall. After cleaning and decorating in 1920 the ladies held the first meeting in the new hall.

The meetings of the early years were always attended by many members and friends as this was the only outing for many farm women even if they had to go with horse & buggy.

During the war years, the W.I. made quilts, knitted socks and mitts and sent comforts for the boys in the services. The Red Cross wasn't forgotten either.

With 80 years of continued service, many of our members are in the same age bracket so someone else will have to carry on.

Mrs. Ruth Sverdah, a friend of W.I., read a lovely poem she had written for a Christmas program in 1993 about W.I. and she came up with a new one for 1995 on our 80th.

Shirley Thompson presented a 50 year pin to Gwen Pratt, 45 year pin to Fern Olson & Jeanette Hunter, 35 year pins to Elsie Phillips and Millie McNeil. For under 35 years, beautiful china A.W.I. mugs went to Mary Pratt (34 yrs.), Mary Neufeld (20 yrs.), Peggy Skinner (13 yrs.), Isabelle Rigsby (11 yrs.) and to the Simpson Family when they return this winter in memory of Phyllis Leeder for 14 years service.

Mrs. Doris Northey brought greetings to us from Alberta Womens Institute, reminiscing about the early years of members and how our branch has really been doing our homework with keeping our history up to date.

Shirley Thompson spoke to us as one of her W.I. group in her Constituency and gave her good wishes in hopes that we would continue as a W.I.

The entertainment for the afternoon was songs by Brenda Cipperley, a grand daughter of a former member, which we greatly enjoyed.

Mary Neufeld thanked the local ladies for serving the lunch and beverages. They were Rita Trenholm, Alice McKay, Gerry Brown, Maxine Ollech, Bev Rasmussen and Carolyn Arand.

Isabelle Rigsby was in charge of the door prizes which were won by Lillian Smiley and Eveline Quantz.

A special thank you was given Jean McCulloch who was our pianist for the afternoon.

Mary Pratt led the W.I. grace.

a brief glimpse at the people and events in our community

Brandi Phillips Visitor booth greeter

Sharing alternate shifts with Didsbury seniors, visitor booth employee Brandi Phillips is looking forward to greeting visitors looking for travel information in Didsbury this summer.

Phillips, who is enjoying her break from university life, said interaction with people was a perk of the job and her familiarity with the area would serve to aid her in directing visitors and in answering questions. An outdoors person and a sun-lover, Phillips hopes to spend much of the summer outside the booth greeting visitors, although since power was installed last week, she can now turn on the lights and listen to the radio when the weather turns wet. Phillips, who recently completed her first year at the University of Lethbridge, plans to transfer to the University of Calgary this fall where she will complete a degree in psychology and then carry on to law school.

Phillips is not daunted by the fact that she's facing at least six years more years of schooling and articling ahead of her. "[DHS Vice Principal] Steve Thompson said I was very tenacious," Phillips said. The tourist booth opened on June 15th and will remain open every day until 6 p.m. through to August 28.

Margaret Weaver Didsbury Museum

As of 4 p.m. Saturday, close to 60 visitors had signed in at the museum, Margaret Weaver said. Gratiified by the steady stream of Big Country Summer Games visitors who took advantage of the fact that the heavy horse 'taxi' made regular stops outside the museum, Weaver said an equal number was expected to tour the facility on Sunday. A special games display was set up for the games, featuring sporting exhibits reflecting the wide variety of activities and sports the games exemplified. And volunteer efforts won't let up when the games conclude. Weaver, co-chair of the Canada Day Committee will be joining scores of other volunteers preparing Didsbury's next extravaganza—Canada Day Celebrations, on (you guessed it) July 1. Co-chair Marcia Forth said that in case of rain, the alternate site for the Canada Day ceremony will be indoors at the curling rink complex.

'Golden Girls'

Mildred Miller of Air-drie, who picked up singles gold in cribbage, and team gold winners Gwen Hatton and Ruby Baker of Cremona. The official medal presenter was Gayle Veno. Organizer Eveline Silverthorne said the effort that went into organizing the meet at the 5-0 Club paid off, as the cribbage competition went off without a hitch, finishing ahead of schedule.

Barry Allen

Habitat project planting party

Over 700 shrubs, trees and plants will be added to the Didsbury Natural Habitat location in 1995, organizers advised. Ross Ford teaching staff, including Barry Allen, Grant Spence, Gail Jensen, Brenda Turner and Kris Skinner spent several hours placing and planting dogwood and wild rose shrubs last Tuesday as part of the ongoing efforts to enhance the natural atmosphere of the wildlife habitat located on the school grounds north of Westglen. The habitat has attracted Canada geese two years in a row now and a variety of nesting and transitory winged creatures have been sighted in increasingly abundant numbers on the site of late.

Lauren Arthurs

Grand Champion steer winner

Lauren Arthurs' 'secret' is "her Dad's good breeding program", joked assistant West Didsbury 4-H beef leader (and Lauren's dad) Ric Arthurs. Arthurs said Lauren spent "a lot of hours" working with her steer and was hoping to place well. At 16, with five years of 4-H experience behind her, Lauren was prepared to put in the necessary hours. Noting the fact that her steer is an "exceptionally good calf to work with", Arthurs said Lauren picked out her own calf and the rest was up to her. Tipping the scales at 100 pounds, Arthurs said his daughter can't be expected to "manhandle a steer" and she didn't have to, as her steer was on his best behavior throughout the judging and beyond, going on to take top honors as grand champion steer at last Wednesday's Carstairs and District 53rd 4-H Show and Sale.

Constable Myles Peckham Torch run participant

The last time you saw flashing lights behind you, one would wager the officer monitoring your speed from behind was not decked out in jogging gear topped off with a yellow sash. Cst. Myles Peckham, acting official police escort, was one of 23 participants who also took a turn carrying the torch through Didsbury to the Memorial Complex arena Friday night. The torch was passed from runner to runner and finally handed to Michelle McKinnon, who used it to ignite the official games torch—with some last minute assistance from Canadian Western Natural Gas District Agent Doug Sharpe. Also on hand from the local constabulary was Cst. Steve Woolnough, who led the color party in red serge attire.

Heidi Sue Baudistel received her diploma in legal assistant, May 13, 1995 from Red Deer College

Photographer returns home with new business

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A Didsbury High School grad has returned home to her roots and is turning a hobby into a business.

Tracey Brosh, who graduated from DHS in 1986, returned home to live in Didsbury two years ago with her husband Rob Simmonds after spending several years in Calgary. Brosh recently opened a photo studio business in their home and is enjoying turning a hobby she has grown to love into a thriving business.

Brosh came to photography later after spending six years in the hotel and restaurant management business and five years in physical education working on ski hills and the Calgary Winter Club. She and Simmonds had lived in Cochrane but were disappointed with the cost of living and found themselves drawn back to Didsbury.

It was after returning to town when Brosh was struck by the idea of turning her love for amateur photography into a professional business.

"I got into photography when I met my husband," Brosh said. "He's a real camera buff and he got me interested in SLRs and 35 mm cameras."

Since then, Brosh has completed a variety of courses offered through the Alberta College of Art and joined the prestigious Foothills Camera Club. She started taking more advanced courses when she decided to try photography for a living and has since joined the Central Alberta Photographic Society, the Prairie Region Photographic Society and the National Association of Photographic Arts. Membership in these groups has also led Brosh to enter her work in national and international competitions.

Brosh opened up her studio two months ago, turning the family garage into a well stocked studio complete with a variety of backgrounds.

"I like to change my backgrounds all the time so no two photographs are the same," she said. "You have to do that especially in a small town because people don't want to walk in to their neighbors house and see the same photo."

While Brosh enjoys the studio work, she said her favorite shots are taken outside in the early morning or evening sun.

"I've found all sorts of nooks and crannies around town which make excellent backdrops," she said.

Brosh said her specialty is portraiture but she is open to diversity and is looking into working with local horse clubs, sports teams, schools and other agricultural clubs.

"I have done some commercial work as well for the town and I have my pilot's licence so I can do aerial photography as well."

Brosh's studio is open by appointment only. You can contact her at 335-3021.

Back at home. Tracey Brosh has turned a hobby into a professional business back in her home town. The former DHS grad was bitten by the photography bug when she met her husband and decided to make it her profession. Janice Harrington photo

Generosity. Didsbury's residents took full advantage of a free submarine sandwich offering from the new Subway restaurant last Monday. The restaurant held a pre-opening celebration, offering free 6 inch subs and a drink for anyone who braved the line up. Subway ended up serving 805 sandwiches during three hours. Restaurant owner Dan Merkely said it was good practise for his staff. Janice Harrington photo

ALBERTA AGRICULTURE, FOOD AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Regional Advisory Services

by Rollie Davies
Farm Management Specialist

In these notes I will touch on another related topic and that is how to get a quick mid-season picture.

"No time," you may say, and this may be true but not a problem if you had set up the system during your winter planning session.

This is where the computer really shows its true value. Literally within minutes it is possible to update what you have done so far and get a picture of a worst and best scenario from now on.

You can get an immediate feeling for the bottom line impact of a poor or good crop. You can see now what price you need to get at least to break even. You can make mid-season adjustments that are so vital to operating a successful business.

This also applies to livestock operations as well as crop and forage production. It is a good time to add up feed fed plus all other livestock expenses. Then look at the gross margins (contribution margins) for the cows, calves, backgrounders and pen fed cattle.

Yes, we are talking about cash management at this stage. If some of your estimates were not realistic you need to know how much they were out. Only by knowing this will it be possible to do something about it.

It could, of course, be either on the income side or the expense side that adjustments are made. Successful businesses are those that know what is happening and have the determination (with lots of innovation!) to make it happen.

The second part of a mid-season review concerns the overall bottom line. Yes, it is possible in June to make mid-season corrections to ensure there is a surplus on the bottom line at the end of the year.

The pleasure of achieving something at the end of a whole year's hard work is the motivating force. In the case of commercial businesses it is frequently the need to satisfy shareholders with a good dividend! Depending on the size of a farm operation it could be something as simple as putting funds aside for retirement, a holiday or even a new computer! All of these must be assessed carefully in the context of good tax planning.

The big picture bottom-line from a cash perspective is to achieve a predetermined target of cash surplus. This must be adjusted for an expected increase or decrease of inventory and payables or receivables to determine a true picture of profitability.

The easiest way is to work on the cash flow projections. If you have the numbers set up from the winter planning sessions, it is a very quick and easy exercise to make adjustments, especially if you have the numbers in a computer spreadsheet.

If this article prompts you to do something, it could save you thousands! If you would like some help on setting up a system, please give any one of the farm management specialists a call. We would be delighted to help.

Also a big thank you to all the Krebs and Regner families especially Gloria who made the day so perfect with all their help with the preparations. We enjoyed meeting everyone at the wedding and dance. Hopefully we will remember your names next time we meet. Thank you for being there for the kids.

We are so pleased that Louise is now part of such a wonderful and caring family as the Krebs and Regners as well as being in a close knit community as Didsbury.

Five ways to say goodbye to your mortgage early by Linda Plewis and Maureen Stevens

Special to the Review

When you sign the mortgage papers for your new home, it can feel like a weighty responsibility. If you're like most Canadians, you'll probably choose an amortization period of 25 years to pay off your mortgage. That can seem like a lifetime, especially in the first few years when most of your payments are going toward interest and very little is actually paying off your debt. But there are ways to trim years off your mortgage. And you don't have to be a millionaire to do it. The following suggestions are based on an $80,000 mortgage at a constant 10 percent interest rate, amortized over 25 years.

• Consider a shorter amortization period. It's tempting to choose a long pay-back period because the monthly payments are smaller at a time when you're struggling to find every cent for your new home. But a few extra dollars a month make a big difference. Your $80,000 mortgage costs $715.59 a month over 25 years. With a 15-year amortization, it costs $849.82 ($134.23 a month more) but you will pay considerably less in total interest.

• Make your payments more frequently. This is one of the easiest and most popular options people have to shorten their mortgage. Take your monthly payment, cut it in half and pay that amount every two weeks. That's called an accelerated bi-weekly payment. You end up making 26 payments a year -- the equivalent of 13 monthly payments. But because it's spread out over the whole year, most home owners never notice the difference. There's a big difference in the life of the mortgage. With this option, you would pay off your $80,000 mortgage in 18.7 years and save a lot on interest. You can also make accelerated weekly payments.

• Make lump sum payments. Most mortgages allow you to make occasional payments that go directly to reducing the principal -- that is, the amount you borrowed. There are different rules for different mortgages, but suppose you paid a lump sum of $2,000 every year. Your $80,000 mortgage would be gone in only 14.1 years. And you'd save $65,748 in interest.

• Double-up payments. Some lenders allow you to make double payments, either occasionally or even every month and apply it to the principal. If you find yourself with enough extra cash to make just one double payment a year, your mortgage shrinks to 19.2 years. If you can swing it four times a year, you're home free in just under 12 years.

• Increase your regular payments. Many lenders let you boost your regular payments if you find the mortgage easier to handle than you expected. Many apply that increase directly to the principal. If you were to increase your payments by 10 percent from the start, your mortgage would be gone in just over 18 years.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

Dan Peters, Realtor
RE/MAX R.E. (MOUNTAIN VIEW) LTD.

IDENTIFY THE COMPETITION!

When selling a home, the most difficult assignment for owners is pricing their home at "fair market value." Because homes rarely sell for more than a fair price, it is critical that owners have sufficient information to make their pricing decision.

How can they gather the data needed? Most can be provided by their real estate agent, based on detailed records of recent sales in the area. Sale prices, terms offered, and time on the market are all pertinent.

Two factors are not readily apparent from those hard facts and figures - buyer appeal and condition. Homes currently for sale - the competition - deserve close scrutiny. Do they reflect pride of ownership, or are they begging for the owner's care? Do they quickly catch the eye of the prospective buyers, or do they fall into a category called "generic" home?

One way to make a determination of the strength of the competition is to take a drive past other homes currently for sale. Make notes about their "eye appeal". What style are they? Do they make a lasting impression?

Sellers may ask their agents to provide the asking prices, condition, financing offered, and other details for further comparison.

In summary, sellers should arm themselves with an in-depth understanding of the local market before pricing their home. The benefit can be an early sale at the best price!

DIET HINT OF THE DAY

BUDDY VICTOR, DIRECTOR WEIGHT WATCHERS

FIBRE For Health & Weight Loss
Your Grandma called it "bulk". Your Mom called it "roughage". We know it as "fibre" and we're learning more about its benefits every year! High fibre foods are essential to good health and weight control. These include legumes, grains, pasta, breads and cereals plus fruits and vegetables with their skins and seeds. It's been proven that high fibre choices can provide valuable nutrients, lower your cholesterol levels, reduce your risk of heart disease and certain types of cancer and, yes, aid weight loss by making you feel satisfied with less calories. Start adding good, daily fibre choices.
